YOUNG FRED BUTLER KILLED BY MADMAN

Domestic Trouble Believed
Responsible for Slay-ing of Boy, Attempt To Kill Estranged Wife.

GRIFFIN, Ga., April 20.—W. M. Ward, 64-year-old mill nightwatchman, shot an 11-year-old boy to death, shot at his wife, his father-in-law, and the brother and father of the boy he killed, and stood off county officers for more than two hours today before he was routed out of his house at Ex-Periment, a suburb of Griffin, with a machine gun.

After bringing tragedy to the home of Fred Butler, a neighbor, when a bullet from Ward's rifle pierced the forehead of Fred Butler Jr., as the boy sat on his bed preparing to attend the funeral of his grandmother, Ward barricaded himself in his home and, armed with revolvers, rifle and shotgun, for two hours harangued a crowd of more than a thousand people who gathered at the scene of the tragedy.

Griffin and Spalding county officers tried to persuade Ward to surrender and, when he refused, sent to Atlanta for assistance. A police squad headed by Chief T. O. Sturdivant responded.

When the Atlanta police approached the crowd fell back, hushed by the impending climax to a morning of horror and fear. Chief Sturdivant, alone, walked toward the house where Ward, with rifle in his hand, stood defiant upon the porch.

As Ward raised his rifle Chief Sturdivant drew a tear gas gun from behind his back and fired on gas bomb at the killer. Ward retreated into his house, yelling defiance, and Sturdivant slipped around to the rear, where he fired two more gas bombs through an open window.

Ward then emerged onto the rear porch and, as he raised his rifle to fire at Sturdivant, Policeman F. B. Dailey, standing beside the chief, fired point-blank with the machine gun he carried. Several shots struck Ward, one passing through the head and others entering the chest.

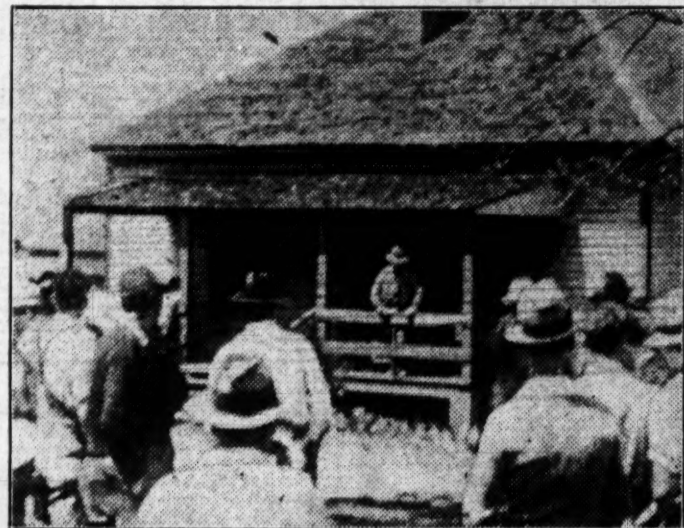

The five-hour career of the killer began early in the morning when he visited the home of his father-in-law, Bob Akin, in the Sunnyside community, a few miles from here, to see his estranged wife, who left him Saturday.

Sheriff H. T. McWilliams said Mrs. Ward told him her husband, many years her senior, had been acting strangely for several days, and that recently he had become "too mean to live with."

Today, the sheriff quoted her as saying, he appeared at her father's home armed with a pistol and a rifle. He told her, she said, "If you don't live with me you won't live with anybody. I've come to kill you all."

He began to beat her with the pistol, she said, and then fired at her. She had a powder burn on her breast just above the heart, inflicted, she said, when she knocked the weapon up just in time to save her.

Action Pictures at Griffin, Where Killer Was Shot Dead by Machine Gun Squad

Action photographs of Griffin's maniacal killer on his porch with a crowd gathered, and of Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant advancing after driving the killer inside with a tear gas bomb, are shown above. These daring and unusual photographs were made by C. D. Randall, Griffin automobile dealer, with a small movie camera. At the upper left is W. M. Ward on his porch with the crowd held at bay by his rifle, just before Chief Sturdivant and his men arrived with tear gas bombs and machine guns. In the upper right Chief Sturdivant is seen advancing alone on the house after driving Ward inside. Sturdivant a few seconds later went to the rear side of the house, fired two tear gas bombs through a window and met Ward at the back door, where he was killed by machine gun fire as he tried to kill Sturdivant. In the center is Ward, from a recent photograph. In the lower left is a picture of the rear of the house, with Sheriff Henry McWilliams, of Spalding county, looking to the place where Ward fell mortally wounded. In the lower right are shown Fred Butler Sr., father of the boy killed by Ward, and the young victim's sister. Butler is sitting on the bed where his son was shot, the boy falling to the floor in front of the trunk. The pictures on the lower left and right are staff photos. by Kenneth Rogers.

RELIEF BOND SALE REACHES $278,000

Success Assured of Plan
To Retain Federal Relief
for City.

Success for the program to refund about $500,000 of 1934 municipal bonds to keep federal relief expenditures for Atlanta was predicted Friday when the total subscriptions hit $278,000. Rich's, Inc., underwrote $100,000 worth and obtained the distinction of being the first large retail business house in Atlanta to join the move.

A total of $113,000 in new subscriptions was reported at a meeting of the committee at a morning of the citizens' committee at the city hall during the morning. Preston S. Arkwright, chairman, told members of the committee the "issue needs no balldroop to sell it. It is beneath the dignity of the city and the securities offered to balldroop them."

A slight change in the refunding process was reported by Arkwright. He explained that refunding bonds will not be issued, but that under the plan, the Atlanta Clearing House banks proposed to designate one of their number.

HARVEY AND SMITH QUIT PRISON TODAY

Two Notorious Bandits,
Given Pardons, Promise to Lead Model Lives.

Granted full pardons by Governor Eugene Talmadge with the admonition that they "go in peace and sin no more," Aubrey Smith and Leland Harvey, Georgia's notorious prison escape artists, Friday night were preparing to leave the Milledgeville state prison farm and seek employment, both promising to show their gratitude to the chief executive by leading exemplary lives.

The pardons, issued by the governor shortly after noon Friday, will reach Milledgeville this morning and it is expected that the two men will be home with their families before nightfall.

Both convicts said they were extremely happy over the governor's action and both pledged themselves to lives showing that they appreciated his clemency.

In freeing the two men, Governor Talmadge set at liberty convicted highway robbers whose sentences once totaled 145 years for Smith and 110 years for Harvey. Both, however, had received reductions last year when the governor pardoned them of all crimes save those on which they netted five-year sentences.

Harvey is Happy. "I would rather start than go back on the governor, Captain Lawrence and the friends who have believed in me," Harvey said before returning to his duties in the mess hall.

"I have long looked for this opportunity to face the world a free man and I will make good. I knew before I had been in prison a year that crime does not pay. The only happiness I have ever had has been temporary. As for honor among thieves, there is no more than among society in general as it depends on the training and the principles of the crooks one is thrown with."

Harvey said he had been promised

CURRY IS OUSTED BY TAMMANY HALL

Vote Is 14 1-3 to 10 1-6.
Rule by Triumvirate Is Expected.

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP)—John F. Curry was ousted tonight as leader of Tammany Hall.

The vote was 14 1-3 for ouster and 10 1-6 for retention of the man who has been chieftain for five years. The action was taken after an hour and a half of discussion by the hall's executive committee in a closed session in the historic wigwam.

The committee reached no decision on the appointment of a leader to succeed Curry but it was indicated that a triumvirate—as appointed in times of stress before—would be named to operate Tammany Hall.

The decision came after two and one-half hours of debate in secret session and was greeted by boisterous cheering in the thronged hall of Tammany.

Immediately the decision was reached, Curry retired to an inner room and denied himself to members of Tammany and interviewers.

A short time before the decision

Reduction of Capital
Structure or U. S. Operation Held Alternatives.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today disclosed he feels the general financial condition of railroads is so serious that reduction of their capital structure or government ownership are their only alternatives.

Mr. Roosevelt at the same time renewed his demands for settlement of the railway wage controversy on the basis of continuance of the present 10 per cent reduction for another six months; with provision that the railways use increased earnings to rehabilitate their properties and hire additional men.

It was made clear that the president opposed federal ownership of railroads and hopes the situation can be met by capital reorganization that would enable the roads to reduce their vast payments for interest and other fixed charges.

He has appointed Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins

WORLD ACTION AIM OF F. D. R. ON SILVER

President Opposed to Independent Action by
U. S. at This Time.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP)—The White House indicated today international action rather than a single-handed effort by the United States was the course President Roosevelt would prefer to take toward an improvement in the status of silver.

Despite the formulation by senate silver advocates of arguments to use tomorrow in a conference with Mr. Roosevelt at which they will seek his approval of silver legislation, there was a clear indication at the White House that chief executive did not want any such bill at this session.

It was made clear there the administration felt there was an unknown quantity entering into the silver situation that did not apply to gold, in that the amount of gold in the world was known and no one knows how much silver there is.

Among the senators and house members pressing for action on silver legislation, however, there was a feeling Mr. Roosevelt might be willing to accept some additional bill along that line if a law were to give the executive permissive authority to take further price boosting steps for the metal and did not make such steps mandatory.

Mr. Roosevelt was described as feeling the answer to the silver monetization problem lies in the formula presented at the London economic conference.

Under this, all nations would fix definite reserves of silver in ratio to their gold supply. The president was further represented as believing it was impossible for one nation alone to handle the complicated and ramified silver problem.

This strengthened the belief he would flatly oppose any proposal which would force the government into a broad silver rehabilitation movement.

Senator King, democrat, Utah, chairman of the unofficial silver committee, called a meeting of the six senators on it to go over the situation in the morning before presenting their views to the president at noon.

F. D. R. BACKS BILL TO AID INDUSTRY

Measure Would Establish Federal Fund for 5-Year Loan.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP)—A "go ahead" signal from President Roosevelt today virtually assured early congressional action on the Glass bill to establish a huge fund in the federal reserve system for five-year loans to industry.

The chief executive gave his support to the plan in a conference with Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, author of the legislation, and Eugene Black, governor of the federal reserve corporation.

Chairman Fletcher was expected to call the senate banking committee together within a day or two to act on the bill and consider a more liberal plan proposed by Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Members of the committee predicted speedy approval of the Glass legislation, and probably abandonment of the Jones proposal. The RFC head was asked, however, to be heard by the committee before a final vote is taken.

Under the Glass bill, which was drafted as a substitute for an earlier proposal by Black for the creation of credit banks in each federal reserve district.

GREAT SAVINGS SEEN BY FARLEY

Bids Range From 17 1-2
to 39.94 Cents a Pound
With Limits Having
Been Set at 41-45.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP)—A "considerable saving to the government" was predicted tonight by Postmaster-General Farley as the result of the new bids for temporary air mail contracts just received.

Competition was "keen and bona fide," he added, and all the bids received were at a lower rate than was paid for the same routes and the same service under the contracts that were annulled on February 19 and were the lowest ever received by the department.

Forty-three bids for 21 routes were opened at noon and disclosed offers ranging from 17 1-2 cents an hour all the way to 39.94, by comparison with the 41-45 cent maximum imposed by the postoffice department.

Crowd Starred. So low were some of the bids, by comparison with the 41-45-cent maximum imposed by the postoffice department, that they brought gasps from a large crowd of intently interested spectators at a ceremonious opening of the proposals.

Meanwhile, the senate put in a full day on the new administration aviation bill with Fess, of Ohio, persistent republican critic of Roosevelt air mail policy holding the floor throughout the session and announcing he would continue his speech on Monday.

A house committee investigation of naval airplane business awards was interrupted by a set-to between committee member and a British spectator, C. J. MacKendrick, who asked persistent republican critic of Roosevelt air mail policy holding the floor throughout the session and announcing he would continue his speech on Monday.

All bids are being carefully analyzed by air mail officials of the postoffice department, officials of the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce, the solicitor of the postoffice department and a special assistant attorney-general, Farley's statement said.

"Before any contract is awarded it will be determined whether the bids were responsive to the advertisements and the responsibility of the bidders and the adequacy of the equipment offered will also be determined. It will be several days before the contracts can be awarded."

Among the bidders were seven companies, revamped since Farley's creed that no concern whose air mail contracts had been annulled or who had representatives at the much-discussed conference of 1930 could be eligible.

One of the bidders, United Airlines, Inc., entered proposals for routes formerly covered by four companies—Boeing Air Transport, Inc., Pacific Air Transport, National Air Transport, Inc., and Varney Airlines, Inc.—who have all sought to enjoin Postmaster-General Farley from enforcing his annulment order.

Cord Active. Another bidder that was eagerly watched by the crowd was American Airlines, Inc., reputedly dominated by E. L. Cord, motor magnate. Formerly American Airlines, Inc., the concern bid on eight of the 21 routes offered. In seven cases it had com-

Miami Flight Begun By Dirigible Macon

SUNNYVALE, Calif., April 20.—(AP)—Rising from the mooring mast at 9:35 a. m., the dirigible Macon today began its cross-country journey to Florida to participate in maneuvers with the United States fleet in the Caribbean sea.
A slight mast hung over Moffatt field here as the giant navy airship went aloft. Three days is the estimated time for the flight, which will be the longest the dirigible has attempted since it came from the east coast last October to its base here in 70 hours.

KALININ DEMANDS MILITARIZATION

By STANLEY P. RICHARDSON.
MOSCOW, April 20.—(P)—The "intensive militarization" of all rural Russia was demanded by Michael Kalinin, president of soviet Russia,

"It is not enough to form an invincible front by means of technical assistance," said the author, "and peasants," he declared in an article published in the newspaper Pravda.

"We also must have a strong rear line connected with the front by thousands of threads," he maintained while condemning the rural soviets as not being sufficiently active in this regard.

The chief task is to train women and children and others not fit for military service to carry out the work of the collective farms. "If all unembodied persons are mobilized, so that the normal functions will not be interrupted with."

Those who remain in the collective farms must be prepared for every thing.

"It is not sufficient that they know how to use gas masks, it won't be enough that they be able to manage a gun.

Living in the Ward home at the time of the tragedy were Elton Fowler, his son-in-law, and Mrs. Fowler, his daughter by his second marriage, as well as Mrs. Fowler's mother, Ward's divorced wife.

The Fowlers and the second Mrs. Ward had been living in Atlanta until the late fall of 1927, when they moved to Experiment on Ward's plea that his daughter come home to cook for him. Fowler made it clear that there was no attempt at reconciliation between him and his first wife, and that she was merely staying at the home to be with her daughter, Mrs. Fowler.

HARRISON DEFENDS ASSESSMENT HIKE

Comptroller Says Increase Was Urged at Last State Convention.

Tax valuations of the 13 leading railroads and 10 independent telephone companies which received increases were urged by the platform of the last state democratic convention at Macon and not because of a personal insistence by Governor Eugene Talmadge, Comptroller-General William B. Harrison testified today.

The testimony was given before the board of arbitration seeking to settle the assessment of the Seaboard Airline Railroad at the first of a series of hearings growing out of the increasing of the valuations by Mr. Harrison. The arbiters conducting the hearing were Marion Smith, Atlanta lawyer, representing the railroad, and Jud P. Wilhoit, chairman of the public service commission, representing the state.

Under questioning by Walter T. Colquitt, attorney for the Seaboard, Comptroller-General Harrison admitted that public utilities which accepted rate cuts were permitted to file the same tax return as last year, but also pointed to the party platform as his reason for giving this permission.

"The platform of the party said that utility rates were too high and the property valuation of the utilities too low," the comptroller said.

Followed Party Policy.

In outlining the reason why the Seaboard was given an increase, Mr. Harrison, under questioning from Assistant Attorney-General John T. Goree, said that he knew his policy to be that of Governor Talmadge and of the state administration.

"It is the policy of the party which elected me to office as well as the personal policy of the governor and the state administration, Mr. Harrison said.

The comptroller raised the valuation of the Seaboard from $7,812,000 to $85,247,200.

Asked by Judge Colquitt how he arrived at the figures which he set for the road, Mr. Harrison said that he formally requested the public service commission to furnish him with the rate-making base of the Seaboard and other railroads and that he arrived at his figures after studying the value fixed for rate-making purposes.

Took 60 Per Cent of Total.

"I merely took 60 per cent of the figures on file with the public service commission," he said.

The railroad's case was read into the record by W. L. Stanley, of Atlanta, Seaboard vice president.

Mr. Stanley cited figures to show that the road has earned nothing since 1920 and in the more than two years it has been in receivership has not even been able to pay the interest on its indebtedness.

The Seaboard executive said that if the present tax assessment had been in effect during the last few years the road would have shown a huge operating deficit instead of a very small profit.

Mr. Stanley submitted figures showing that property in Georgia was assessed at only a part of its value, but quoted a report of a tax commission appointed in 1918 which found that railroads were paying taxes on a valuation of about 42.5 per cent of the fair value.

In 1923 the assessment of the railroads totaled 8.49 per cent of the entire property return of the state and 10.27 per cent of the property on all county tax districts in Georgia.

"I have heard it suggested that the values for rate-making purposes

Pastor Expresses Approval Of Constitution Essay Contest

Enthusiastic approval of The Constitution's essay contest for Georgia high school pupils on the subject, "Southern Literature in the World of Letters," was voiced by Rev. Russell K. Smith, pastor of the Church of Epiphany. He said:

"I am convinced that one of the best ways of educating the young people of a nation is to acquaint them, as far as possible, with the folk songs and folk lore of their people. This I note to be practiced extensively in the Chinese and Japanese schools, and among the Indians, both red and brown, with the Eskimau and with the Ethiopians.

"The expression of southern genius was hampered for many years after the War Between the States by reason of the unwillingness of the northern magazines and papers to publish southern contributions, and the lack of money among the southern people to publish their own work.

"This hiatus has now been filled with the publishing of a series of books under the title 'Library of Southern Literature,' in which can be found many hitherto unpublished articles, manuscripts and stories by southern men and women.

"I am glad to know that the young people of this generation are being urged through a natural and painstaking co-operation in the study of the literature of their people during the period since the War Between the States, and I commend most highly this effort."

The 15 best essays will be awarded as many sets of 10 volumes each of the Library of Southern Literature. The contest will close on April 30.

and for tax purposes should be one and the same. There is, in my opinion, a very clear distinction between these two values. A railroad is entitled to a fair return, if it can earn it, upon the sum of money invested in its properties dedicated to the public use.

Tax value is controlled by what actually comes out of the property in the form of net earnings and controls the public's appraisal of the value and that sum at which it would sell under actual operating conditions at a given time."

MRS. LENA FRANKEL GETS DIVORCE DECREE

Mrs. Lena Frankel was awarded a final decree of divorce Friday from Lazar Frankel, Atlanta meat market operator, and alimony in the sum of $1,000 a year as long as she remains unmarried, plus all of Mr. Frankel's insurance made payable to her, the cash surrender value of which is $5,070 at the present time.

Each writer is introduced with a biography and a choice of bindings is offered. The books are not only entertaining and instructive, but are also ornamental, worthy of a place in any well-selected library.

A new edition of the Library of Southern Literature has just been published by the Martin & Hoyt Co., publishers, of Atlanta.

No conditions are imposed on contestants except that they be high school students. It is not necessary to be a subscriber to The Constitution to enter the contest.

One of these problems is possible of solution and the other impossible. Get out your Imp game and find out for yourself which is which. Answer tomorrow.

In case you have not bought one of the manufactured games, rule off 16 blank squares. Cut them out and paste on cardboard. Number the squares from one to fifteen, four lines of four squares each. Discard the sixteenth square and then, without lifting any squares from the table, proceed to work out the above problems.

There are more than a trillion possible and impossible combinations of the numbers one to fifteen. Some of you will recognize an Imp the old fifteen puzzle.

Problems will appear daily in pairs. Each pair will be alike in design and symmetry. One always will be possible of solution and the other impossible. The trial and error method is the interesting way to find the solutions.

Answer to Yesterday's Problem—A, Impossible; B, Possible.

Fair and warmer today and probably Sunday was predicted for Atlanta by the weather bureau on Friday.

Today's temperature is expected to range between 46 and 70 degrees, which would compare with Friday's range of 47 to 59 degrees. Friday was clear almost all day but the temperature was low enough all day to make steam heat and light overcoats comfortable.

On the Air Today

ALL-STAR—Headline personalities of the stage and screen will join radio stars in broadcasting an hour-long program to the Byrd expedition at 7 o'clock tonight. The program, originating at the annual dinner of the associated motion picture advertisers in the Hotel Astor, New York, will be broadcast over the Columbia network and WGST together with the regular weekly communication from Little America. Among the entertainers already scheduled to take part are Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, John Charles Thomas, Irene Dunne, Lanny Ross, and the Meyer Davis orchestra. The Music Hall choir, Mae West, George Hafe and George Jessel are also expected to begin the program, although they have not yet definitely accepted the invitation to participate.

WAR TALK—"The Munitions Problem" will be the subject of a discussion by Ralph MacAllister Ingersoll, managing editor of Fortune, over the WGST-Columbia chain tonight from 7:45 to 8 o'clock. Attention has been focused on the activities of the world's armament industries as the result of an article entitled "Arms and the Men in the March Issue of Fortune. Its publication was termed the "greatest sensation since the World War" by Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and the interest it has evoked has prompted a leading publisher to bring the article out in booklet form. "Arms and the Men" has resulted in repercussions both here and abroad. Ingersoll will discuss peace proposals.

STUECKGOLD—Greta Stueckgold, concert soprano, singing with the Andre Kostelanetz orchestra and chorus, will feature aGounod's "Ave Maria" during her program over the Columbia net work and WGST from 8 to 8:30 o'clock tonight. The orchestral high spot of the evening will be a presentation of selections from Bing Crosby's new, and as yet unreleased film, "We're Not Dressing." The 16-voice chorus will join the 40 musicians in Kostelanetz's unusual arrangement of four potential hits from the picture's score—"Love Thy Neighbor," "May I?" "Good Night, Lovely Little Lady" and "Once in a Blue Moon." Mme. Stueckgold, for her opening contribution, will sing the aria, "Un bel di vedremo," from Puccini's opera, "Madame Butterfly." Her remaining selection will be one chosen from the ranks of modern light opera, "I Give My Heart," from "The DuBarry."

PAUMONOK—The WABC-Columbia network will inaugurate an ambitious broadcast schedule of 1934's leading turf events today when Thomas Bryan George's account of the Paumonok handicap at the Jamaica race track on Long Island will be carried over WGST from 2:30 to 3 p. m. A dozen outstanding horse races have already been booked, including the Kentucky Derby on May 5, from the historic course at Churchill Downs, Ky. Others will be added as the thoroughbred develop, when performances indicate which meetings will provide the most exciting competition. The Paumonok, an annual feature since 1908, officially opens the metropolitan season.

MATTHEW WOLL—Matthew Woll, president of the American Wage Earners Protective Conference and vice president of the American Federation of Labor, will discuss "The Interdependency of Farmers and Industrial Workers" over the WGST-Columbia network today from 1 to 1:30 p. m. The program, originating in the CBS-WGV studios in Washington, will be presented under the auspices of the American farm federation bureau. M. W. Thatcher, Washington representative of the Farmers National Grain Corporation, will also speak, discussing "Farmers and the New Tariff Policy." The general purpose of the broadcast is to present the views of agriculture and labor on the reciprocal tariff agreement situation.

Editors Laud Code Victory In Press Freedom Battle

National Society Opposes Wide Powers for a Federal Communications Commission.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP)—The successful demand for freedom of the press guarantees in the NRA newspaper code was voted "a memorable battle and glorious victory" by the American Society of Newspaper Editors today in the adoption of a report simultaneously opposing large powers proposed for a federal communications commission.

The report, submitted by the society's committee on public relations, said that in signing the executive order promulgating the newspaper code, President Roosevelt made himself "responsible for the unmistakable criticism" which many editors and publishers "have chosen to regard as gratuitous and exceedingly drastic."

The language referred to said the press freedom of expression was guaranteed by the constitution "but it is not freedom to work children, or do business in a firetrap or violate the laws against obscenity, libel and lewdness." Earlier, Hugh S. Johnson had told the editors he was responsible for the wording.

Denies Censorship Aim.
The NRA chieftain denied accusations of "a diabolical desire to impose censorship on the press" and asked co-operation in speeding success of the president's recovery program.

"I started out here and said that I didn't believe that NRA could have gotten to first base except for the newspapers," Johnson said. "They put this recovery program over."

In connection with President Roosevelt's recommendation for a communications commission, the public relations report submitted to the society by Grove H. Patterson of the Toledo

Blade, Casper S. Yost of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and William Allen White of the Emporia Gazette, said:

"The committee goes on record as opposed to the large powers that have been proposed for a federal communications commission in Washington. Despite all safeguards herebefore mentioned, the likelihood that such a federal communications commission might try to inflict a measure of censorship on the press, along with its domination of the telephone and radio business, is not too remote."

Biven Is Speaker.
A frankly "pessimistic view" of the future of free speech was presented to the editors by Bruce Biven, editor of the New Republic. He said two-thirds of the world's population is "living under rigid and complete censorship" while eight-ninths is under serious restrictions of free speech of a governmental character. He added:

"Only one-ninth, or roughly some 225,000,000 persons, live in countries where newspapers are without formal censorship and enjoy the degree of freedom which we know in the United States."

Biven was one of the speakers at the second session of the society's twelfth annual convention. It also heard Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chieftain, deny accusations of "a diabolical desire to impose censorship on the press."

Co-operation Asked.
Johnson asked the co-operation of the editors in speeding success of President Roosevelt's recovery program, also inviting criticism, and added:

"I started out here and said that I didn't believe that NRA could have gotten to first base except for the newspapers. They put this recovery program over."

Bliven said the United States had reason to be proud of its freedom of speech and of the press in comparison with many other lands. But he said that even here this freedom was qualified by three important censorships—censorship of the audience; censorship through one's economic position and self censorship.

A luncheon shop-talk discussion revolved about an address of Allen Raymond, president of the Newspaper Guild of New York. "To whom it may concern," was Raymond's opening phrase in saying:

"There is today and always will be one basic determination of the Guild against which no decent newspaperman can stand—the protection against all tyranny and oppression of the right of this craft to organize."

Secret Intimidation.
Raymond said none denied this right openly but that Guild officers had evidence of some newspaper opposition "secretly by intimidation and coercion."

"This evidence will be submitted at the proper time, not alone to the government and its courts, but to public opinion," he said. "I've come here to ask your help for the Guild; I am confident I am going to get it."

Several editors questioned the attitude indicated by Raymond's opening remark. Roy Howard, chairman of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, said he had "some regret at the tone of 'to whom it may concern.'"

Howard said the Guild should determine whether it was to employ trade union tactics to the men behind the Guild resorting to trade union tactics unless driven to them as a last resort. Howard said, asking also whether a 100 per cent Guild membership might not make class publications out of newspapers which had struggled for years to free the press of partisanship.

Marlen Pew, of Editor and Publisher, likewise distinguished between the Guild and a union, terming "unionization of editorial forces unthinkable."

Suit Asks $1,050,000 In San Jose Lynching

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—(UP)—The lynching of two men by a mob of 5,000 persons at San Jose, Calif., last fall resulted today in a damage suit for $1,050,000 filed here against Governor James Rolph Jr., the San Jose News, radio station KQWN, 12 identified and 100 unidentified persons.

Mrs. Evelyn Holmes, widow of John M. Holmes, who was lynched with Thomas Thurmond after they allegedly confessed the kidnapping and slaying of Brooke Hart, son of a wealthy San Jose merchant, was plaintiff in the superior court suit.

Co-plaintiffs were the Holmes children, David and Joyce, minors. Damages of $50,000 were asked for loss of property.

Howard said the Guild should de-

YOU MOTORISTS told us you wanted a gasoline with more power and mileage. And now Shell gives it to you in improved new Super Shell, the first "super-charged" gasoline, refined by a new chemical process which packs up to 6900 extra firing charges in every gallon.

Everyone knows that it's firing charges in the engine cylinders that make the wheels go round. So, when a gasoline has as many as 6900 extra firing charges per gallon, you get quicker pick-up, more power—more mileage!

Motorists in hilly parts of the country say they particularly notice Super Shell's pick-up and power on steep, tough grades. Other motorists claim they get as much as one, two, and three miles extra per gallon with Super Shell.

Get improved Super Shell into that car of yours today! This super-charged gasoline still sells at the same price as regular gasoline.

The most modern racing cars and airplanes are equipped with mechanical super-chargers that force gasoline under pressure into the cylinders to get more firing charges per gallon. Now, Super Shell itself is super-charged with up to 6900 extra firing charges per gallon.

ARKANSAS HALTS USE OF CONVICTS TO PULL PLANTERS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 20.—(AP)—Governor J. M. Fulton today ordered the state penal board to stop the use of convicts in place of mules to pull cotton planters on the Tucker state prison farm.

The governor issued this statement: "The pulling of a 100-pound cotton planter by six able-bodied men is not harmful to them. The thought that it is the work of a mule suggests that the practice be stopped. I have requested the board to do so."

He acted after receiving a report from his private secretary, H. Grady McCall, and Chairman Walter Helms, of the penal board. They witnessed a demonstration of the unique method adopted by Prison Superintendent A. G. Stedman to get the huge prison crop planted.

After watching the six-man teams pulling the planter, with another convict between the handles, Chairman Helms expressed the view the men were not being subjected to harsh treatment and ordered the practice continued.

Stedman put six of the convict-drawn planters in the field during the past few days because of a shortage of mules and a delay in getting the crop planted under way.

In justification of it, Stedman said the men in pulling the planters were doing no harder work than they did otherwise on the farm.

CHATTANOOGA PLEDGES GREAT GRAY REUNION

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 20.—A Confederate reunion that not only will be "on an elaborate scale as formerly," but with much more warmth and a greater welcome than these veterans have ever had before, has been promised the south's soldiers when they gather in Chattanooga June 6-8.

Adjutant General Harry Rene Lee, of the U. S. V., was advised today by Sam H. Borsky, general chairman of the convention committee for the reunion, that Chattanooga is preparing a big welcome.

EXEMPTION PLAN VETO IS ASSAILED

White To Lead Plan To Override; Key Raps City Council.

Veto by Mayor James L. Key of a council resolution seeking a constitutional amendment providing for exemption from city taxes of home owners up to $2,000 drew a sharp rebuff Friday afternoon from Councilman John A. White, author of the measure.

At the same time Key vetoed the exemption resolution, the mayor also disapproved a plan to absorb the $1,500,000 municipal deficit over a five year period, but approved several other requests for charter amendments and other legislative actions designed to increase the revenue of the city.

"The mayor evidently left his glasses at home, as I am sure if he had read the measure, he would not have vetoed it without at least asking me to explain it to him," White said in making known his intention to lead a council drive to override the veto.

"Under tax information, furnished by assessors, only about $2,000,000 worth of property would be written off if the proposal is approved. That would be made up in additional revenues provided from other measures which the mayor did sign. Florida is to vote on an exemption up to $5,000, and if we fail to do something about this matter, we will lose a lot of citizens."

Under White's proposal, an exemption of $2,000 would have been given any home owner, provided he lives in the house involved.

Opposes Loss of Revenue.
Key disapproved both the measures he vetoed on the ground that they would take revenue at this time, which the city can not spare, and that if sanctioned, heavier salary cuts for employees "who are not now any too well paid," would be inevitable.

Among the measures the mayor sanctioned were the following:
1. Levy of a $10 annual occupational tax on persons who work and make their living here, but who do not live inside the city limits.

2. Diversion of two percent of the six-cent gas tax paid by Atlantans.
3. Lifting of the civil service protection from the chiefs of the fire and police departments, who now serve for life. Both chiefs will be elected by council for a term of years to be designated by that body in the event the legislature concurs in the proposal.

Hits Failure to Cut Body.

Key also took a slap at council for failing to offer any reduction plan among the proposed charter revisions. He pointed to the referendum in which Atlantans voted for a reduction not only of council but also the number of wards. He asked for action in that matter.

Councilman Aubrey Milam, member of the special charter revision committee of council, which recommended the measures Key acted on Friday, said the reduction will be considered at a meeting of the committee Monday night.

Abolition of several council committees and cutting of the personnel of others were contained in the measures Key sanctioned.

The bridge committee is consolidated with the streets committee; the hospitals and charities committee is cut from five to one; the municipal market committee is abolished and its work concentrated under the public buildings and grounds committee; the schools committee is cut from five members to one.

Key Raps Council.
In commenting on the failure to recommend a smaller council Key said:

"The people voted for a marked reduction in the city council and a very marked reduction in the number of wards and for a lessening of the administrative functions of the general council. These things have been completely ignored. I do not understand these men, representing the public, distinctly ignoring the purpose and intention of the vote they were asked for a reduction, but nothing is done about it. We have too many wards."

"The public has said so and asked for a reduction, but nothing has been done about that. We have too much intermeddling with the administrative affairs by the members of general council. The public have said so and have asked for it, but nothing has been done about it."

"I ask the general council to leave this matter of charter amendment to be taken up again and to carry out in good faith the intention of the public welfare and in the interest of good government, the clear intention of the public in this respect."

CHILDREN'S INTEREST AMAZES EXECUTIVE

"I didn't know there were this many children in Georgia. I took these Indian craftsmen to help us find out how to bring more children to the store in six days than even the toy department brings at Christmas," Raymond Kline, vice president and general manager of Davison's, said Friday.

"There were a lot of grown up children too. They, like the little ones, seemed most interested in Evergreen Tree's imitations of birds and almost every kind of wild animal except a mother-in-law."

"There will be a lot more of Navajo rugs and Pueblo pottery in Atlanta homes next week than ever before and a lot more information about Indians and their habits and skill as craftsmen in the minds of thousands of school children."

"I want to thank the school teachers for their interest and co-operation in bringing in their classes. Never in all my years in the retail business have I seen one store entertain so many children in one week by means of something that had educational as well as entertainment value."

RUSSELL VISITS CITY EN ROUTE TO TRION

Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. arrived in Atlanta Friday morning for a short visit here en route to Trion, Ga., where today he will make a speech dedicating the city's new Doughboy memorial.

The senator said that it was a little too early to say just when congress would adjourn. He also declined to talk politics.

Senator Russell left Washington Thursday afternoon, stopping a few hours at his home at Windsor before coming to Atlanta. He will go directly from Trion to Washington arriving in the capital Sunday night.

Condemnation Fought By Group of Owners

St. Clair Gibbs, Atlanta lawyer, has been elected chairman of an organization of Atlanta property owners formed to fight condemnation of their property to make way for the $5,000,000 government housing project for Atlanta.

The owners, meeting at Gibbs' home at 388 Williams street, pointed out that prices now offered for the property are low and with better times in prospect it is unfair to condemn their property for a smaller total in many cases than they have paid in taxes in the last few years.

"These property owners are unanimous in encouraging Techwood and other housing projects, provided their property rights are recognized and that they receive a fair price for their property," Gibbs said. Hugh Rogers was elected secretary of the association and will call a meeting of the organization soon to invite any owner interested to join.

"TRIAL OPERATION" TO DECIDE FUTURE OF FAMOUS TRAIN

The period of May 13 to August 1 was put forward at a hearing before the public service commission Friday for the trial operation between Macon and Hazlehurst of the Southern Railway's old "Joe Brown Special."

If the experiment shows improved conditions warrant restoration of the train, permanent service probably will be restored.

A delegation of prominent citizens of Macon, Cochran, Jackson and Jenkinsburg appeared to urge restoration of the accommodation train, which was opposed by attorneys for the railroad on the ground the train could not be operated except at a loss.

The train operated for many years between Macon and Atlanta, and was discontinued a year ago because of falling revenues.

Under the experiment, the train would leave Hazlehurst at 6:25 a. m. daily and would arrive in Macon at 9:30 a. m. It would leave Macon at 4:30 p. m. and reach Hazlehurst at 7:35 p. m.

The "Joe Brown" special dates back to the days when Joe Brown and Hoke Smith opposed each other for governor. Brown defeated Smith. At the time of the election Brown was a member of the railroad commission, known now as the public service commission.

Brown and his father both had been railroad officials and when the new train was put on, it was named the "Joe Brown Special" and retained that name until it was discontinued in January, 1932.

FULTON COMMITTEE TO FIX FEES TODAY

The Fulton county democratic executive committee will meet at 11 o'clock this morning at the courthouse to fix the entrance fees for candidates for the statehouse of representatives. The meeting was called by George Bell Jr., chairman of the committee.

The committee already has fixed May 6 as the closing day for entries in the primary which will be held September 12.

Luther Still and William B. Harrisfield, incumbent legislators, have announced for re-election. George A. Eckford has announced that he will not be a candidate. James L. Wells, former councilman, has announced for Eckford's post.

Judge James B. Park, of the Ocmulgee superior court, Friday qualified with Miss Eleanor Orr, secretary of the state committee, as a candidate for re-election. Judge Park's entry was the only one received by Miss Orr during the day.

GARDEN AUTHORITY GUEST OF HASTINGS

Alfred C. Hottes, associate editor of Better Homes and Gardens, and author of more than a dozen garden books, and guest of the Garden Clubs of Georgia convention, one time professor of horticulture at Ohio State University, was the honor guest and principal speaker at a dinner given in his honor by H. G. Hastings Company Friday evening.

The dinner was held at the Atlanta Athletic Club and attended by members of the H. G. Hastings organization.

Georgia Fields And Streams

By H. A. Carter.

Some years ago when I studied entomology I took a keen interest in the subject that has been the basis of many a simile. References are often made to the fact that insects fly toward a light, as all of you remember from one book or another. The moth and the candle idea, you know, in which the poor little insect flies toward the dazzling and desirable light, only to singe his wings off and bury the body in the molten wax, or more recently, clutter up the bottom of the enclosing globe on your lamp. This electrical age is hard on the poets, isn't it?

At any rate, I learned that the head of the insect has two kinds of eyes. The first is the compound eye, in which there are literally hundreds of facets, each with the perfect function of a single eye. Thus the insect can see in almost every direction, and can really prevent my slow-moving hand from closing on him by gauging the time of flight to a split second; that fraction of a second that is chosen will leave within me the strongest sense of baffled rage.

Not content with having these super eyes, the insects—not all, but some species—have developed on their heads three simple eyes, or ocelli. Now something, say the learned ones of insects, about these eyes compels the insect to fly toward the light. At first it is a matter of attraction, of seeing what the light is. Later it becomes dazzled in the brilliance, loses its sense of direction or words to that effect and buzzes its last buzz directly into the flame, or breaks its chitinous body covering on the globe of the lamp.

Have they answered my question, "Why does an insect fly toward the light?" They have not. They have simply explained in the simplest possible manner the way in which such an impulse starts. Granted that the ocelli of the moth may transmit the peculiar impulse that begins the fatal flight and that the nerves that connect the ocelli with the ganglion that foretells the brain to come in higher forms, granted even that the entire mechanism is explained in detail. I still must wonder why light has the effect it has.

Long years ago now, when some freshman comes to me and asks this question, I shall be preoccupied with the snakes of Somaliland, and if I should at that time wish to appear very scholarly, I shall say, "Young man, that is just an extreme case of strong positive phototropism." And the young man will go away. If he has the stuff in him and wonders strongly enough he will find out. Then I shall ask him.

HE HAS PLENTY OF TIME NOW!

This is the fellow who was always in such a hurry. WHO TOOK CHANCES in "beating" traffic lights, passing street cars discharging passengers, who drove recklessly and speeded, whose headlights were not focused properly and whose brakes were not kept in proper adjustment.

But he took one chance too many and killed a mother and her child.

Of course he was sorry---terribly so, but he simply would not heed the admonitions of his friends nor the warnings of THE LAW until it was too late.

Garden Club Officers Elected And Macon Invitation Accepted

Mrs. T. H. McHatton, of Athens, who was elected president of the Garden Club of Georgia at the meeting held yesterday at the Biltmore.

By ANNIE LOU HARDY.
The election of Mrs. Thomas Hubbard McHatton, of Athens, as president, and the acceptance of the invitation to hold the 1935 convention in Macon featured the closing business session of the sixth annual convention of the Garden Club of Georgia held yesterday at the Biltmore hotel.

McHatton succeeds Mrs. Thomas Berry, of Rome, who has headed the organization for the past two years. Other officers elected to serve with Mrs. McHatton include Mrs. Lansing Lee, of Augusta, first vice president; Mrs. James W. Woodruff, of Columbus, second vice president; Mrs. Dan C. Horgan, of Macon, third vice president; Mrs. Richard Johnston, of Atlanta, treasurer; Mrs. Walter Douglas, of Savannah, recording secretary, and Mrs. Milton Jarnigan, of Atlanta, corresponding secretary.

The slate of officers, as returned by the nominating committee, was unanimously elected, the committee including Mrs. T. J. Stewart, of Macon, as chairman; Mrs. W. D. Hooper, of Athens, and Mrs. William F. Shallenberger, of Atlanta.

The invitation to hold the next convention in Macon was extended in a graceful speech by Mrs. Kenneth Dunwoody, president of the Macon Federation of Garden Clubs.

Of prime importance was the voting of the convention body to sponsor a Georgia garden pilgrimage at some future date, approximately a year from now. The project was presented by Mrs. Frank Imman, representing Mrs. J. G. Daingerfield, who is responsible for the first suggestion of the pilgrimage and has labored long and earnestly in its behalf. Mrs. Imman read a comprehensive report of the suggested tour of historic spots in Georgia as prepared by Mrs. Daingerfield, who was unable to be present on account of illness. Mrs. Daingerfield helped to plan and get under way the successful garden pilgrimage of Virginia, and is well qualified to report on such a project. Mrs. McHatton, the new president, will shortly appoint a chairman for the pilgrimage.

Awards Made.
Centering much interest at the closing session of the convention was the award of the Peachtree Garden Club's medal of achievement to Mrs. Robert L. Cooney, of Atlanta, honorary president of the State Garden Club for her splendid work on "The Garden History of Georgia," which made its debut last year and is the first volume of its kind. The award was made by Mrs. Samuel M. Imman, and due to Mrs. Cooney's absence in Pittsburgh, Pa., was accepted by Mrs. Phinixy Calhoun. A telegram was sent from the convention to Mrs. Cooney, acquainting her of the award.

To the Perennial Garden Club of Columbus, of which Mrs. W. T. Heard is president, went the silver medal and the blue ribbon for the best scrapbook made by a club during the year.

The second award, a red ribbon, went to the Iris Garden Club of Griffin; the third, a white ribbon, to the Atkins Park Garden Club, of Atlanta; and the fourth, a gold ribbon, to the Rose Garden Club, of Atlanta, which won the first award last year.

The award is made on three points, namely, horticultural value, news value and artistic value. Acting as judges were Mrs. Julian La Rose Harris, Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown and Lewis F. Skidmore. Mrs. H. W. Beers announced the awards in the absence of Mrs. Harrison Hines, scrapbook chairman.

The prize-winning scrapbook is the artistic work of Mrs. J. Ralston Car-gill, of the Perennial Club, of Columbus. Made of heavy lettuce green paper, it is bound in hand-colored linen of a flower design and printed in gold and black. An interesting feature is the series of flower legends, prepared by various members of the club, and beautifully illustrated with water color sketches of the flowers represented.

The poetry award, offered each year by Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, of Montecuma, was won by Mrs. John F. Moore, of Athens, for her poem, "Colonial Gardens." Miss Jewel Fayer Glass, of LaGrange, won the second prize for her poem, "Acacia," and to Mrs. W. D. Couch, of College Park, went the third for her poem, "Moon Magic." These awards were announced by Mrs. George Burrus, of Columbus, and presented by Mrs. McKenzie.

It was announced that Alfred C. Hottes, associate editor of Better Homes and Gardens, will publish Mrs. Moore's poem in his magazine. Mrs. McKenzie offered an additional award for next year for a prose composition of 100 words on gardens or the love of gardens.

Mrs. Hastings Is Winner.
In the questionnaire contest, of which Mrs. E. L. Raven, of Concord, is chairman, the first award went to Mrs. Gardell Hastings, of the Habersham Garden Club, Atlanta; the second to Mrs. Frank Matthews, of Atlanta; and to Mrs. W. E. King, of the Outburst Garden Club, and the third to Mrs. William McMurray, of the Rose Garden Club, of Atlanta.

The first award for the most constructive program sponsored by any club during the year announced by Mrs. Bolling Sams, chairman, went to the Marguerite Garden Club, of Columbus, and the second to Vineville Garden Club, of Macon.

For the best collection of iris, the award offered by Mrs. James Bachman, of Atlanta, was given to Mrs. Fred Creswell, of the Atlanta Woman's Club. Mentioned as rivals for first prize were Mrs. W. C. Barber, of Cedarstone, Garden Club, and Mrs. C. T. Smith, of the Concord Garden Club. Others given honorable mention were Mrs. William P. Hill, of Peachtree Garden Club; Mrs. W. M. Reynolds, of Marietta Garden Club; Mrs. E. F. Carlisle, of Griffin Garden Club; Mrs. George P. Estes, of Gainesville Garden Club; Mrs. Wallace Smith, of Harpersville Garden Club; Mrs. Cooper Newton, of Griffin Garden Club; Mrs. O. B. Walker, of Griffin Garden Club; and Mrs. T. U. Butts, of Columbus Garden Club.

Mrs. Phinixy Calhoun announced the award for the best collection of wild flowers, offered by Mrs. Robert L. Cooney, the prize going to Mrs. Frank Lamar Fleming, of the Peachtree Garden Club, Atlanta, for her collection of 62 varieties of azaleas.

Two new awards offered for next year included that by the Lullwater Garden Club, of Atlanta, for a 250-word article on any phase of horticulture, and that offered by Mrs. Clarence G. Anderson, of Savannah, for forest fire prevention.

Among changes in the by-laws of the club recommended by Mrs. Lansing Lee, of Augusta, and subsequently adopted was that raising the "dues" from 15 cents to 25 cents per member.

Reports Made.
Mrs. Lamar Rucker, of Athens, chairman of highway beautification, made an interesting report, urging the planting of highways near the entrance of cities. She especially commended the Fort Valley Club, which has sponsored the planting of three miles of camellias, interspersed with crepe myrtles, on highways leading into that city.

Mrs. Joseph M. Spear, of Augusta, chairman of flower shows, reported 62 shows held during the year by member clubs, and gave special praise to the Habersham Garden Club for its recent school of flower judging and arrangement.

Bridal Couple Feted At Buffet Supper

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Nixon and Mr. and Mrs. Malon Courts entertained at a buffet supper last evening at the home of the former on Andrews drive, honoring Miss Josephine Crawford and James D. Robinson Jr., whose marriage takes place April 25. Red roses and yellow snapdragons were artistically arranged in a bowl to form the centerpiece for the dining room table, and two smaller bowls of similar flowers were placed at either end of the table. Mrs. William Parker and Mrs. William Nixon assisted in entertaining the guests who included only members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Nixon was handsomely gowned in blue lace cut on severely plain lines, and Mrs. Courts wore a becoming model of yellow chiffon with a cluster of violets caught at the waistline in the back matching her violet slippers in tone.

Miss Crawford wore heavenly blue lace fashioned on plain lines with a Peter Pan collar finishing the high neckline. Mrs. Rhodes was gowned in white crepe shot with silver threads and worn with a short jacquette trimmed with white fur.

state for publicity given the garden club and its activities.

Mrs. Randolph Jacques, of Macon, proposed a rising vote of thanks to The Constitution and its representative complete coverage of the business sessions of the convention.

Mrs. M. E. Kennedy, of Cuthbert, reported, as chairman on conservation, especially urging the protection of Georgia's holly dogwood and flowers. She commended Rome, Columbus and Marietta clubs for their interest in conservation.

The secretary, Mrs. J. V. H. Rucker, of Athens, read the reports of Mrs. W. H. Heard, of Columbus, chairman of billboards, and of Mrs. E. L. Raven, Concord, chairman of questionnaires, who were absent. Mrs. Heard's report urged the clubs to work for legislative action against billboards marring the public highways.

The very interesting and full report of Mrs. Richard Johnston, of Atlanta, treasurer, concluded the reports.

Oldest Club Representatives.
An interesting fact revealed at the convention was the presence of three members who are daughters of charter members of the first garden club ever formed in America, the Ladies' Garden Club of Athens, which was organized in 1891. The members present were Mrs. Warren Moise, of Atlanta; her sister, Mrs. E. E. Lamkin, of Athens, and Mrs. Henry West, of Athens. A painting done by Calvert Smith, New York artist, and representing the initial meeting of the Ladies' Garden Club, was displayed by Mrs. J. V. H. Rucker, of Athens.

The painting, done in oils, is a composite picture made from photographs of nine of the twelve charter members and the scene is the sitting room in the home of Colonel E. K. Lumpkin, of Peachtree avenue, in Athens, where the first meeting was held. The late Mrs. Lumpkin served as the first president.

Mrs. Julian Wingo, of Savannah, who is chairman of junior gardens, made an earnest appeal for her department, with the following recommendations for changes, which were later adopted: First, that the name be changed from junior gardens to junior activities; second, that a questionnaire on the subject be sent to every school in Georgia, and third, that the Garden Club unite with other organizations to have a bird day designated and the brown thrush adopted as the state bird.

A report was made by the state chairman of publicity, expressing appreciation to the newspapers of the Iris Garden Club, the hostess organiaction, by Mrs. Nellie Womack Hines, of the Milledgeville Garden Club, in a clever interlude. Under the capable direction of Mrs. Bolling Sams, president, and Mrs. William Akers, a past president and general chairman of arrangements, the convention proceeded without a jarring note. The entertainment of so large a body was a gigantic undertaking for an organization of only 30 young women, but more lavish or cordial hospitality has never been extended to the Garden Club of Georgia.

Mrs. Berry's Regime.
Mrs. Lamar Rucker, of Athens, proposed a cheer and a rising vote of thanks for the splendid leadership of Mrs. Berry, the retiring president. Her regime has been one of remarkable achievement and progressive action. The voting of the convention body on Thursday to publish a quarterly bulletin, in lieu of a yearbook, crowned with success the faithful and untiring efforts of Mrs. Berry. Another project she has fervently sponsored and labored for unceasingly is the garden pilgrimage for Georgia, upon which the convention voted yesterday. Both the magazine and the pilgrimage are monuments to her splendid efforts and leadership.

Mrs. McHatton, an alert and attractive person of dainty proportions, immediately gave the impression of intelligence and capability. She learned her first horticultural lessons from her distinguished husband, Dr. Thomas Hubbard McHatton, professor of horticulture at the University of Georgia, and proved an adept and enthusiastic pupil.

Educated in the schools of Washington, D. C., and at Lucy Cobb Institute in Athens, Mrs. McHatton is a cultural asset to her city and community. Her home is an attractive brick house on Milledge avenue and is of the Georgian type of architecture. Her garden serves as an outdoor living room, and is excessively informal as to design and planting. Her only child is a daughter, Miss Marie Lustrat McHatton, who bears her mother's name and who will receive her master's degree at the University of Georgia in June. Like her mother, she is gifted and artistic, having studied at the Corcoran Art School in Washington, D. C., and having attended the Sorbonne University in Paris.

Mrs. McHatton's ambition is to make her regime as president of the State Garden Club one of glamorous achievement. She plans to map out a program of beautification, which will stress the importance of using native shrubs in their respective sections of Georgia and cites the planting of dogwood in Druid Hills as a successful example of this plan.

Mrs. McHatton demonstrated her ability as an executive when she served in January as co-chairman with Mrs. S. V. Sanford of the birthday ball honoring President Roosevelt. More than $1,000 was raised by the ball, the sum amounting to more per capita than in any city in the United States. Under her chairmanship, the NRA division in Athens went over 100 per cent.

She brings the same enthusiasm and efficiency to the high office to which the Garden Club of Georgia elected her yesterday.

THE WILD BIRD

BY OWEN JOHNSON

INSTALLMENT XIII.

"That is the order of the day. The individual is in revolt against the bogey of sacrifice. As conditions which make the family necessary are changing, so the bonds between parents and children are becoming looser. If the idea of the family goes, the terms of marriage will change with it. Surely you see that."

"Never!" Mr. Brawne exclaimed, bringing his fist down on the table. Barbara had understood all her father's maneuvers. She felt a weak depression, and yet at the same time she could not help but respect the way Rance had answered without equivocation. She had tried to influence him, had failed, and felt his value as never before.

"You young men," said her father, "are obsessed by one idea—liberty. It crops out in everything you say or do. Liberty of action, liberty of the mind, always more and more liberty. Sacrifice is abhorrent to you. Well, I have another word for this thing you call sacrifice. I prefer to call it loyalty."

He stopped and looked at the young men with a provocative smile. "To achieve your program you are going to destroy all the loyalties that have compensated us for the hardships and disappointments of life, that have made it possible for us to perform beyond our strength."

Rance shook his head. Bryce shrugged his shoulders, and Laurie Chiswick listened, frowning.

"Our loyalties are the best that is given to us, to safeguard and protect our youth. To the children for whose futures we must provide. Loyalty to the fine things we have handed down to us, to safeguard and protect our youth. Do you wish to call these illusions and sweep them away?"

"No," said Rance. "Not all."

"Some are debatable," thought Bryce, but he remained silent.

Barbara looked at her father in surprise. Never before had she heard him exhibit so much feeling. She had feared his ridicule; she felt certain pride in the self-control he had shown. She looked at Rance, wondering how he had been affected. Rance, as he had listened, had felt a touch of compassion.

"A man from another century," he had thought. "All his world has been shattered about him, and he still goes on denying the obvious, still carrying his candle through a world of electricity. Ancestors worship, and yet rather pathetic. He is pathetic, and I am going to hurt him horribly!"

"Is this what you call progress, Mr. Rance?"

"We are dealing with a lot of egotists playing with new mechanical toys," said Brawne firmly, "and you'll tire of toys as all children do. Then another generation will return the world to its old landmarks."

He laughed.

"And your friends can enjoy themselves even when I am around?"

"Don't be ridiculous."

"Then I've played the game fairly, haven't I?"

"Indeed you have."

"All right. Good!" He moved back to the door and grasped the knob again. "And I have ridiculed any one or raised any trivial objections. You admit that?"

She began to feel uneasy.

"Have I?"

"No."

"Very well. Understand me, then. I object, strongly object, to your acquaintance with Mr. Rance. A man who holds the radical opinions he does, is not a person I care to have in my house. He is extremely objectionable to me, and everything he stands for."

He waited.

"Have I made myself clear?"

Still she did not answer.

"Barbara?"

"Well?"

"Did you hear me?"

"Yes."

She said in a low voice, "I shall not see Mr. Rance again in your house."

He hesitated, started to speak and went out.

When he had gone down in the garden to consider the matter he felt that he had built was nothing but a pack of cards which collapsed before his eyes.

In the end, despite all his precautions, he had lost his daughter. She was one of them, one of this accursed younger generation, without respect or loyalty.

"I have stood by what my father was and believed," he thought gloomily. "I have stood by the old ways, and the things he did because he loved them, and now my own daughter rejects everything I believe in, probably just because I believe in it."

"Sincerely yours,

"JOHNNIE BELL LEGG."

A little more than one-fourth of the people of the earth are Christians; but in Asia only about 2 per cent belong to Christian churches. Thirty-six per cent of the people of Asia are classed as "Taoists and Confucianists." Most of these live in China.

Twenty-three per cent are classed as "Hindus," and almost all members of the faith live in India. Mohammedans compose about 14 per cent of the people of Asia, being found largely in Arabia, Persia, India and Afghanistan.

Buddhists, living chiefly in China, Japan, India and Burma, make up close to 15 per cent.

Asia now contains close to 1,000,000,000 people, about half of the total population of the earth. Of these, 350,000,000 are Taoists and Confucianists. Since many Chinese belong to both religions, separate figures are not given for them. Next come the Hindus, who number around 230,000,000.

Another reader, Mildred Wilson, sends me a new letter in which she says she makes use of the corner at "for science, and for social science, too."

"Please tell me," she writes, "a few things about astronomy that you think a 13-year-old girl should know."

I think it is well for every girl and boy who reaches the age of 13 to know some of the major facts about the sun, moon and planets, and about such star groups as the Big Dipper, the Little Dipper and Orion. They should be able to locate the North Star, and should know the difference between comets and meteors.

In visits I have made to schools in many cities, I have been delighted to learn how much more boys and girls know about the stars and planets than was the case during my boyhood.

On the wall at the far end a lion's head with open mouth hung near the ceiling. With what appeared but a single swift motion, Tarzan flitted the arrow to the bow, drew the feathered shaft to his shoulder and released it. There was a moment's silence, then Tomos gave a sharp outcry.

Johnny Weissmuller coming soon to Loew's Grand in "Tarzan and His Mate."

"We know man who do," replied Gannon. "Then you must know I am an Athenian," stated Tarzan, looking squarely at the surly Tomos. "It makes no difference where you are from," snapped Tomos. "You are an enemy. Look him up; tomorrow we'll decide what's to be done with this suspicious stranger."

When Tarzan was thrust into the prison, he saw by the torches' light that there was another occupant. Left in darkness, he heard the soldier's footsteps die away. He could hear his companion's breathing and wondered with whom fate had cast him in this remote dungeon in the City of Gold.
